Davidson County Community College

"Hey look us over"

By the end of 1960, influential Davidson County leaders had committed themselves to the idea of founding a publicly supported college. The plan for the development of the college was suggested by the State Board of Education: namely, to develop a successful industrial education center, then a technical institute, and finally a junior college – all three schools to become divisions in a comprehensive community college. In March of 1965, the school received comprehensive community college status, and the school name was changed to Davidson County Community College.

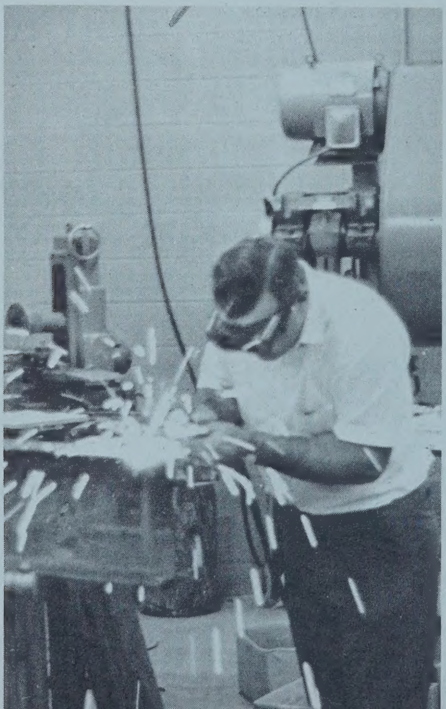
The college is, today, a two-year co-educational institution under the administration of the State Board of Education, Department of Community Colleges. Local control of the publicly supported college is vested in a twelve-member Board of Trustees who contribute their time and efforts as a public service.

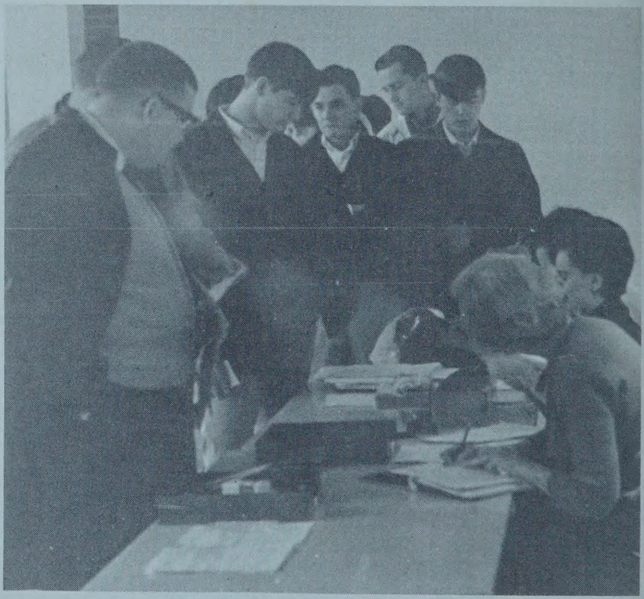
We would like you to join us as we present our year at DCCC. So follow the CAVALIERS as we say, "Hey, look us over!"

. . . democratization of education . . .

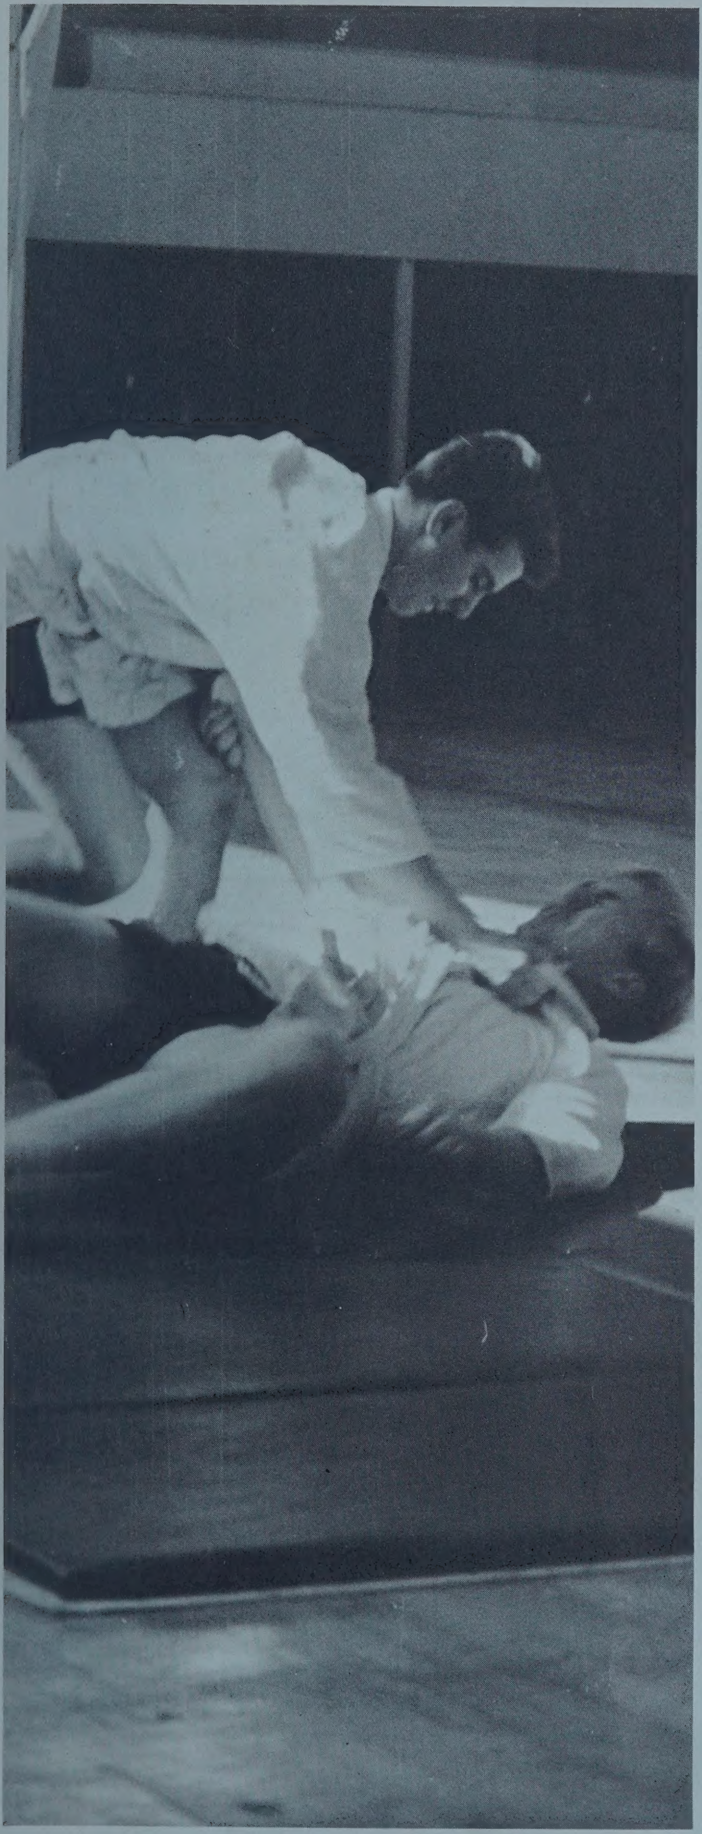
Davidson County Community College provides a wide range of academic and occupational programs appropriate for individuals differing in native abilities, educational achievement, career choices, and financial means.

The college promotes an admissions policy which will allow an individual to enroll in any program from which he can profit, and responds to student and community needs through continual re-evaluation of student characteristics and community needs in order to determine what courses to offer.

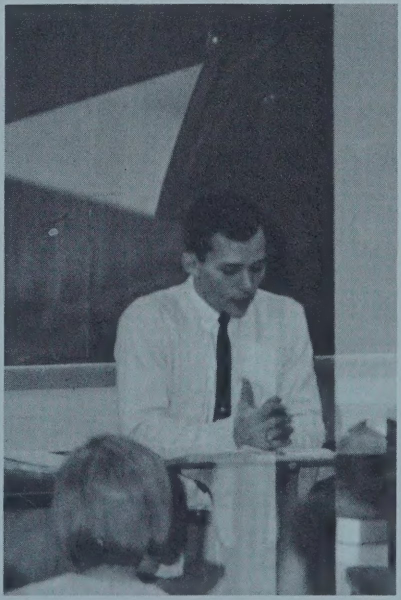




. . . individual development . . .



Davidson County Community College prepares each individual to meet the ever-changing world of the future. With the help of capable advisors and under the supervision of Mr. Elkins, the guidance counselor, the student selects the program of study most suitable for his own needs.



. . . vocational competence . . .

In an ever changing world of engineering and technologies, one must not lose sight of the growing need for skilled craftsmen. Davidson County Community College offers a series of training courses in the trade division with emphasis on manipulative and mental skills applicable to a particular course for which a student is enrolled. He can develop and strengthen the skills that are already in his possession, or he can learn new skills applicable for the jobs of tomorrow.

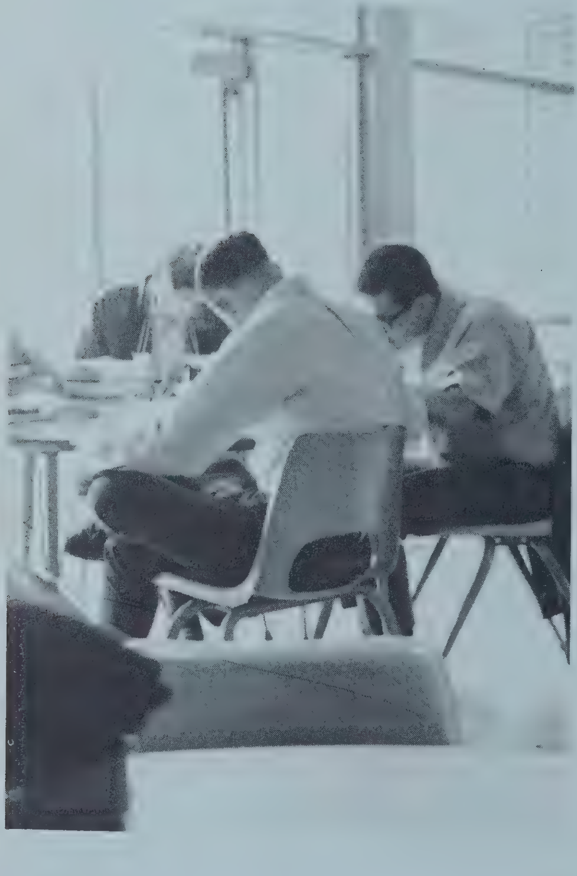
. . . community service . . .

In the course of human events, it becomes necessary to uphold the traditions set forth by the founders of community service, to cultivate new learning, and to restore knowledge for its inhabitants. DCCC opens the door to opportunity by providing educational services to all as the need arises. The college strives to offer these services in the form of adult education. Individual interests such as arts and crafts, sculpturing, knitting, and creative projects are presented for the aid of the community.



. . . intellect, character, personality, citizenship . . .

Dedicated to Dean Roach . . .

With grateful appreciation, we, the 1968 Graduating Class of Davidson County Community College, proudly dedicate the first volume of THE CAVALIER to Mr. H. Herman Roach, Jr., Dean of Student Affairs.

Dean Roach demands of us a standard of excellence which becomes all students if we are to grow into educated adults. His belief is that each individual should exact from himself only the best in whatever he undertakes.

The gratitude of the students for this outstanding leader is exhibited by their devotion to Dean Roach. It is a tremendous task to offer both inspired leadership and personal friendship to each student.

We salute you, Dean Roach, for working so untiringly for the improvement of the student program, for planning a varied range of activities, for guiding us as we choose courses and careers, and for remembering that first of all we are people.

Administration and Faculty

Look us over, we ask again. Look at our President as he dedicates the new classroom building; at our trustees, watching and planning behind the scenes; at deans and directors, instructors and secretaries; at all the varied staff who work together to turn human beings, bricks and mortar into a junior college.

Grady E. Love
Ph. D., University of North Carolina

President of the College

Challenged by the opportunity to participate in the structure and growth of a newly established institution, Dr. Grady E. Love assumed his role as the first President of Davidson County Community College in July, 1965. In addition to a rich background of study and experience in the field of education, his former position as Professor of Education and Executive Director of the Downtown Division of Guilford College, Greensboro, North Carolina, afforded Dr. Love profound insight into the task before him and resourcefulness in the performance of that task. Under his leadership, Davidson County Community College has grown from Vocational-Technical Institute to the status of a junior college.

Since his formal inauguration as President of the College in December, 1966, Dr. Love has been instrumental in the completion of the new Administrative Building, which houses the College Parallel Division, the personnel and business offices, and the administrative staff. A man of vision and faith, he harbors plans for continued construction and growth of this College.

Official business always comes first.

Board of Trustees

No institution can be greater than the vision of the men and women who chart its course. From the first resolve by Davidson County citizens that they too must offer public junior college facilities to their children, the Trustees of Davidson County Community College have dreamed and planned, worked and thought, and have seen the first fruits of their labors. The future is bright, full of challenge and promise.

Deans

The college is fortunate to have Mr. William T. Sinclair as its Dean of Instruction and Mr. Herman Roach as its Dean of Student Affairs. Both of these men have played important roles in the development of the college and have helped the student body with the problems and opportunities of college life.

Dean Sinclair was the founding father and President of the Davidson County Industrial Education Center, the initial stage of the community college. Since 1965, when the community college was organized, he has guided the college's instructional programs, taught music, and generously given his advice and assistance to the students whenever they called upon him.

Dean Roach has served with the college since 1963. During this time he has been a valuable counselor to the students and has established and directed the student organizations and activities so necessary to the effective functioning of the college.

The office doors of Dean Sinclair and Dean Roach are always open to the student body of Davidson County Community College, and the students know that these two men stand ready to provide kind and sympathetic assistance whenever it is needed.

Classes

The major objectives of the classes offered at Davidson County Community College are as follows:

1. To provide two years of credit courses for students desiring to transfer to four year colleges.
2. To provide two years of technical education appropriate to the needs of the individual and the community.
3. To provide vocational education for persons desiring to prepare for a trade or upgrade themselves in their present jobs.
4. To provide an adult program based on community needs and interests with special emphasis on the following areas:
    a. Basic education courses for grades 1-8.
    b. High school equivalency certificate.
    c. Cultural and community service programs.
5. To provide a program of guidance and instruction which will help all students become effective members of a democratic society.

Campus Life

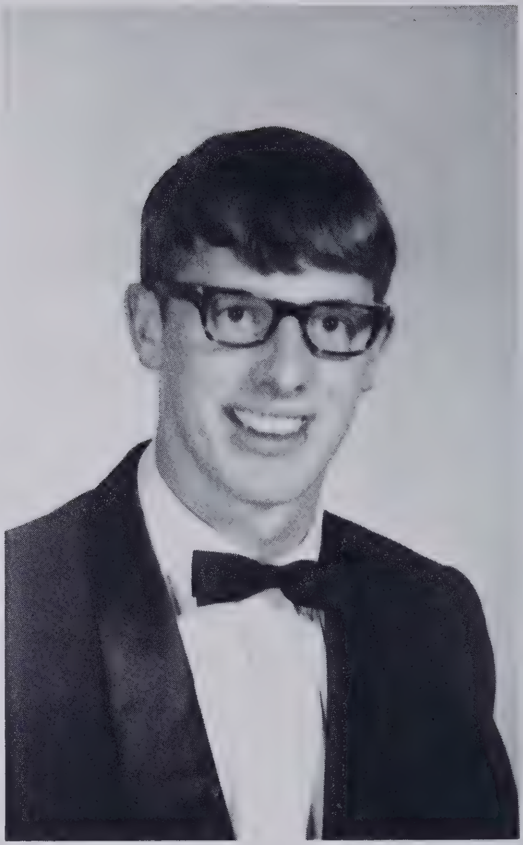
The program of student activities – predominantly student – directed – seeks to provide channels of expression for varying individual interests.

As student citizens continue to learn the meaning of responsibility, organizations like the SGA and its branches are training tomorrow's leaders.

A vigorous student press serves readers and staff alike, a voice for opinion and a vehicle for ideas. In the first year of its existence, Davidson County Community College launched THE COMMUTER. In the second year, THE CAVALIER made its bow.

Circle K, pioneer service club at DCCC, offers new areas for growth. Less formal but no less vital, dances and student mixers remind us that friendships too are part of education.

Greg Miller
President



SGA

The Student Government Association owes to each student good representation, unbiased legislation, a constant betterment of student relationships, and the best of student activities. The members of the SGA must constantly strive to pay this debt.

The SGA is helpless without the student support. Each student enrolled in DCCC is a member of the SGA and is, therefore, eligible to vote, to run for office, and to air his grievances before the senate.

As duly elected representatives, the members of the SGA are concerned with the welfare of the whole student body. Any activity which concerns the student body concerns the SGA. The SGA endeavors to regulate these activities to bring about the best results for the students.

Commuter Staff

"Hey look us over!" is the triumphant shout of the Cavalier as he emerges ink stained and weary but victoriously waving the latest issue of the COMMUTER. The Roving Cavalier is usually such a tidy gentleman, but today he has discarded his plumed hat and cape, and his distinguished face bears the distinctive imprint of ink fingers. Nevertheless, our spirited friend is quite gay as he races through the halls thrusting a COMMUTER, still fresh with the sweet smell of ink, into the hands of eager members of the college family-students, administration, faculty, and staff. Why, not even a visitor is safe from learning the latest news of students and college activities.

Yes, sir, our Cavalier is a busy fellow who knows first-hand the hard work a college newspaper requires. Many a day he has waded through the debris in the staff office – crumpled paper still clutching articles and ideas that just wouldn't do, broken pencils that just couldn't produce the right sentence, and the sad little pile of hair washed with the tears of the editor and able assistants . . . But, thanks to the devoted staff members and their loyal advisor who are guided by the spirit of the Cavalier, students, college staff, and citizens of the community are able to get a closer look at life at Davidson County Community College.

Chorus

The College Chorus of Davidson County Community College welcomes the opportunity to display their talents. Initiated in the fall of 1966, the Chorus greeted the 1967 academic year with a new director and a new piano. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Carter, director and accompanist, lead the College Chorus in singing, "Hey Look Us Over" to the Davidson County Community. The Chorus, proud of the tradition they have already established, anticipate the development of a department of music as part of the regular curriculum of Davidson County Community College. Much has been accomplished, but the College Chorus nevertheless accepts the challenge to continue building the musical tradition of the school.

Mass confusion, our by product.

But Mr. Long said they were free.

Cavalier Staff

The 1968 CAVALIER speaks for the first yearbook staff at Davidson County Community College. Ready for inspection, the annual not only demonstrates the work of the pioneering CAVALIER staff but also extends the invitation of "Hey, look us over" for years to come. The challenge of establishing precedent is demanding; the desire for the tradition of a yearbook is realized only by long hours of writing copy, of planning interminable pages. The yearbook staff is proud of being a part of a growing educational institution and offers the 1968 CAVALIER as evidence of participation in the pioneering spirit of Davidson County Community College.

FAC

The F.A.C., offically known as the Freshman Advisory Council, was the first honor group formed at Davidson County Community College. The prime purpose of this Sophomore organization, with members chosen on the basis of scholarship and leadership, is to offer assistance to Freshmen having academic difficulties.

During the Fall Quarter of the current academic year FAC members served as guides for the dedication and open house of the new classroom building.

It is the aim of the Freshman Advisory Council to find newer and better ways to help Freshmen in adjusting to college life.

Circle K

The Davidson County Community College chapter of the Circle K Club was the first of all student groups to be organized. This year the club expects to receive its membership charter from Circle K International. Mr. James and Mr. Elkins, faculty advisors, were instrumental in reactivating the club on the new campus. The club is sponsored by the Lexington Kiwanis Club.

The membership consists of male students with good character and high scholastic standing at this institution. The local club is carrying out several projects for the betterment of the school and the community.

My better side

Physical Education

Physical education plays an important role in the life of the college student, helping to maintain and condition the body and mind. At DCCC, P.E. consists mainly of gymnastics, volleyball, basketball, handball, bowling, golf, judo, and badminton. Gymnastics, probably the most important, enables the student to develop and strengthen his muscles. (The trampoline and parallel bars received much abuse until performers learned coordination.)

Basketball teams from the college and the Lexington area were organized by the Y.M.C.A. Other teams, such as wrestling, now are part of the program open to interested students.

Think maybe we should stop seeing each other?

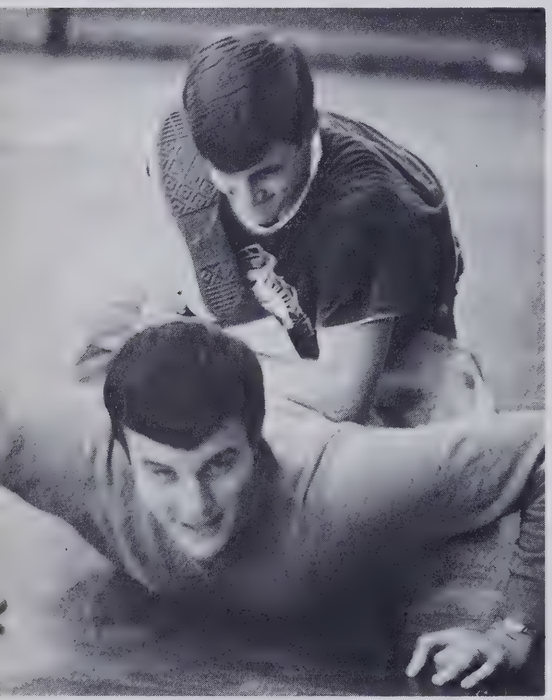
So this is

Man, if I only had the ball!

volley ball.

Certs is a candy mint . . .

Many hours of physical conditioning must be included in training for a match since every muscle is in constant stress during the match.

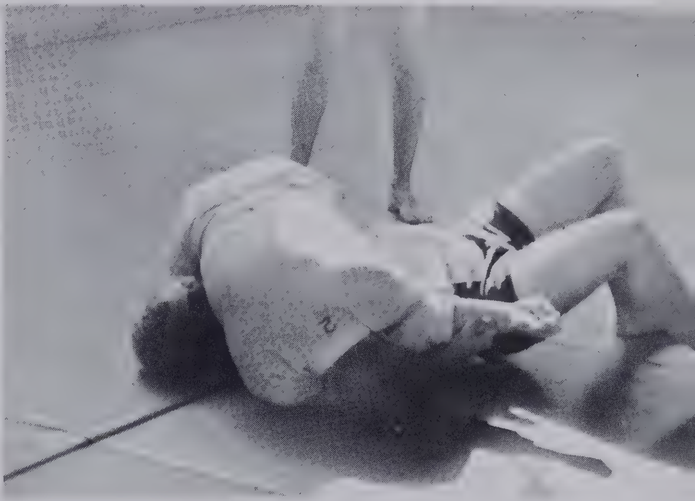


"How does this feel?"

"If you don't let go of my arm I'm going to stomp you!"

"Who wants to mop the gym floor?"

"Get up! My back is killing me!"



Almost . . . Almost . . . Almost . . .

Wrestling

Wrestling is one of the finest sports to be added to the athletic curriculum at DCCC this year. It is one of the most strenuous sports and very challenging for the most athletically inclined. Various wrestling holds and techniques are mastered only after many hours of practice against various opponents. The offensive, defensive, and counter techniques must become fast reflexes to a wrestler in order for him to be successful at his sport. The benefits received from active participation in wrestling contribute greatly to the individual. Wrestling is becoming one of the most popular sports among colleges today, including DCCC.

Poised, pretty, and popular describe the girl chosen by her fellow students as Miss Davidson County Community College. She is Miss Deena Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde W. Morgan of Salisbury, North Carolina. Deena came to DCCC after graduating with honors from East Rowan High School

A candidate for the Associate in Arts degree, Deena serves on the Elections Board and the Sophomore Council.

The students at Davidson County Community College are proud to be represented by Miss DCCC.
